HARVEST HOME.

44 THE TEARS OF SOWING-THE BEAPER'S JOY."

See! gilding the field with glory, The harvest waves in the wind Shall we forget the story Of all that lies behind? How the frozen clods were broken, And the sower sowed in tears. The sweat of his brow the token Of these waving, golden ears? Or how in the summer hours, The noon-sun scorched it through?

Let us teach our souls the lesson We learn rom the golden grain-How life's most precious blessing Is won through years of pain. Our chilled, hard heart's first broken. And the first seed sown in tears,

Sorrow and pain the token Of peace in the after years, When the soil, all steep'd in showers, And damp'd with the chilling dew, And when in the summer hours. The noon-sun has scorched it through. Then cometh the careful master,

Who hath knowledge of our need, The loving, unweary Master, Who sow'd and nourish'd the seed; And hearts all ripe for His coming, Forget the years that are flown; When He bids His angel reapers Gather His harvest home.

WILL SEAFORD'S FORTUNE

Old Dave Barrett, rare old Dave, the prince of good messmates and able seamen, rolling his sea which had come aboard had swept them Neptune. Dave was a sailor every inch. His hanging over the mizzen sail. balance the evil in his account, that he may enter the "Sailor's Snug Haven," there to ride at anchor through the long, eternal day.

"Come about me, mates," he said, "for I'm a mind to tell you how Will Seaford found his fortune. I knowed him well, mates-no man better, and he were a man and a messmate to the very backbone. It would have done you good to see that face on deck, when they piped all hands aloft in a storm. It always did me good to see him out there on the weather earring, working away as cheerfully as if he had solid ground beneath his feet, rather than a foot-rope, while the sea boiled below, and the great rollers leaped up eager to tear him from his hold. He was as handsome a young chap as you would wish to see, with black, curling hair, black eyes, cheeks as rosy as a girl's, and mighty muscles! I often thought he had no right at sea, and was born to better things: but he loved it. Mates, when you see a smile on o man's face in hours of danger, then make up your mind that you've got a good man to stand by you when danger threatens.

"Our 'old man' was a good captain. 'Taint often you sail under a better one than old Jack Venner, of the Arethusa. We had been two years on the whaling grounds, and were coming home full to the hatches; and, on the way back, we stopped at Honolulu for sea stores. When the last load had come on board, the old man went ashore in his gig, and when he came back he had a passenger in the stern sheets, the neatest little clipper these eyes ever seehis darter-she were a beauty, boys! We sailors may be rough and ready, but we love the thusa bearing down under sail. name of woman, or we are no true sailors. Will Seaford was pulling the stroke oar in the captain's gig, and his eyes were fixed upon her face in a mute, adoring way, and I knowed his billet had come. It was rough in a foremast Jack to think of falling head over ears in love with a girl like that-the captain's darter, too; but he done it. She seemed to like his looks, too, and when we sent the 'whip' down to get her up the side. Will was the one to help her into it, and tell her what to do.

"Her uncle had been United States consul at Honolulu, and was going home in a month or so, and she wanted to go back with her father. I don't go much on consuls, mates; they don't give a foremast hand any show, as a general thing, and I know one man I'd like to knock into the shape of a slush lump some fine day, and that's the consul at Honolulu now; I wish he was condemned to sail forever in a limejuicer' and eat ship biscuit and 'salt horse' to all eternity. But Milly Venner's uncle was a good man; he couldn't have her father's blood

"He laughed, and went on with his work, and one night after the old man had turned in, and Will ought to have been in his hammock. I saw her standing with him by the lee rail, with her head mighty close to his. I were mad I tell you, but it aint in me to peach on a messmate, no matter what he does, and I went forrard, thinking what a fearful keel-hauling Will would get if the old man should come on deck, and I felt some one brush by me, and there was the old man close beside them. The gal gave a little scream, and Will drawed hisself up and looked like a king, while the captain opened his mouth and kinder swore a little. And when old man Venner let himself loose, he could make a dead calm at sea by swearing. It took all the wind for his breath, and made things smell of sulphur.

"Go below,' he said, shaking his fist under Will's nose. 'I'll teach you to sneak up on deck in this way, you - swab.'

"'Don't say anything you may have cause to repent, Captain Venner,' said Will, coolly. 'I was going to speak to you to-morrow, and tell you I loved your daughter, and wished to make her my wife.'

"I don't wonder that Captain Venner could not speak, but just stood and glared at the boy as if he would eat him. The cool impudence of the whole thing drove him half mad, and he could only point toward the fork'stle.

"I'll go below, if you wish it,' said Will. "Milly, don't speak a word until we run into port, and then I will explain. I-'

"Crash! The squal was upon us. The sticks came down about our ears, and a great sea swept the deck. Every man, even the lookout, had been so busy watching the muss that they did not see the squall creeping up, and it took us by surprise. The old man grabbed a life line and roared to the man at the wheel to let her go before the wind, and we righted, coming up out of the foam with clean swept decks. A Correction.

Correspondence of the Christian Weekly. NEW ORLEANS, LA., SEPT. 29, 1874.

MR. EDITOR:-As one who has for four years been a resident of New Orleans, and was in the city through all the stirring events of the 14th and 15th instant, I desire to point out certain grave errors in facts as well as the order of events as found in the article on the "Louisiana Revolution," in the Weekly of the 26th ult. For the general correctness of that article both as to facts and their deductions therefrom, I can vouch; but in the following extract some most vital mistakes are discoverable, while the actual order in the succession of events is strangely inverted. You say:

"It is certain that the best men in the State hoped by a fair and honest election to secure a change of administration. It is equally certain that the worst men in the State meant to get control by either fair means or foul, and by intimidating the negroes to make the Louisiana government a white man's government. They organized in secret White Leagues. Then began the importation of arms and the process of intimidation. The Kellogg Legislature retaliated by giving the Governor power to appoint all registers of election throughout the State, and the registers power to strike names of voters from the lists. The Governor followed up their action by seizing the imported arms in the custom-house."

That" the hopes of the best men of the State, which you rightly say were "by a fair election to secure a change of administration" were most sadly disappointed, the action of the Kellogg Legislature, (most correctly so-called), which you afterwards quote, very plainly shows. That "the worst men of the State" organized in secret White Leagues is far from true. This city is the influential centre of the White League of Louisiana, and as I am personally acquainted with General F. N. Ogden, who commanded the citizen troops when attacked by Kellogg's Metropolitans as well as many others of the leaders among the different branches of the League here, I can assert most positively, that it numbers among its members many of the very best our population.

Again, it is not a secret organization at all. Smuggling Diamonds.

The Boston Commercial Bulletin, in an artile on smnggling, relates the following story: "There is a very important traffic carried or in diamonds over the various European lines to this country, and as the duty upon them is ten per cent, ad valorem the sharpest watch is kept upon those suspected to be engaged in it. By means of agents abroad the Collector's office has often information, by cable, of the departure from the various ports of suspected diamond smugglers, and is prepared to intercept them. In nine cases out of ten, the stones are concealed upon the persons of the passengers. When this becomes a certainty, or what is supposed to be a certainty, the passenger is arrested and taken to the Searcher's Bureau in the Customhouse. Here, if found necessary, the party is stripped to the skin, and his clothes exmined inch by inch and seam by seam; the heels are taken from his boots, his hair and beard is combed, and every means taken to discover the hiding place of the secreted treasures. Once this mode of search used to be tolerably of our citizens and none of the very worst of successful, but now it rarely serves any purpose except in the case of raw recruits to the smuggling ranks. "A New York Jew, who was reputed to be in the business of smuggling diamonds, used room. Nearly a thousand dollars' worth of precious stones were found secreted in the lining of his boots. He returned to Liverpool by the same steamer, and four weeks afterward again landed upon the Company's wharf on North river. He was again arrested and subsuccess. The Jew took it smilingly and philosophically. When he took his leave he said "Better luck next time, gentlemen. I shall go back by the same steamer on business, and when I return von can try it again."

The officers mentally determined if he did they would try it again. Upon inquiry it was found that he had really engaged a return passage, having held his stateroom for that purpose. Two hours before the sailing of the fighting occurred after three o'clock of Monday, steamer he was driven down to the pier in his carriage, his wife and daughter with him to Thus you see that your presentation of the see him off. His coat was removed and the lining coat. As the searcher passed his practiced fingers along the lining his heart gave a tremendous thump as he recognized the 'feel' of something pebbly, like little rows of buttons. The garment was hastily ripped, a strip of chamois skin withdrawn and unrolled and there they lay, one, two, three-eighteen! All there. blandly. 'Good day.' Without a word the Jew departed, took a horse car home, kissed his family, ate a rousing supper, repaired to the bath room, and after soaking a rather capacious plaster across the small of his back for a few moments in warm water, peeled it off, and with it eighteen diamonds of various costs and prices. What the searcher and collected may have said or thought when they found their seizure to be nothing but clever imitations, worth from ten to thirty cents each, nobody knows; for although the seizure was loudly heralded, the finale was never made public. A lady in New York city, moving in fashionable circles, wears a valuable diamond which was imported in the cavity of a double tooth, said tooth being in the mouth of an Israelitish gentleman of New York. It was placed in its rather unromantic hiding place in London, and safely covered with bone filling which was displaced after its arrival in New York.

The assessed value of the real estate in New York city, as equalized by the State assessors, is $812,700.047. A. T. THE LATE NORTHERN VICTORIES. - Facts are stubborn things, and we care very little what some penny-a-liners, at the head of Radical organs which change their proprietorship and cditorship about once a year, say, when we have indisputable facts to fall back upon.

The late political victories demonstrate beyond a doubt that the people of the North no longer put any faith in the lying statements circulated by Radical emissaries and their allies at the South, about Southern outrages.

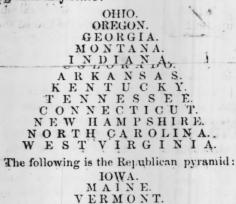

In this connection, says the Wilmington Journal:

"It is this truth, now demonstrated beyond the possibility of a doubt, that gives the inestimable value to the victories in Ohio and Indiern heart about the so-called Trenton massacre in Tennessee; then we had the Coushatta massacre in Louisiana; then we had the overbudget of outrage lies from South Carolina. Then we had Charles Hays and his budget of State, save only North Carolina. And what they receive no money from the fund, was the result? Was the Northern heart fired? Not at all. On the contrary we find that in-stead of being inflamed by these stories of lawessness and crime in the South, as it would have been at any previous election, the Northern heart remained calm and serene, and res ponded nobly to the appeals of the Democratic party to discard passion for patriotism."

See what the Philadelphia Press a leading Radical sheet, says, in relation to the late Conservative victories in Ohio and Indiana:

"The October elections were against the Republican party, and heavily so. In the States which have thus far held elections 33 Democrats and 30 Republican Congressmen have been returned against 47 Republicans and 17 ocrats carried the day by 1,800 majority. In Democrats in 1872. And in the States yet to the city of Augusta there were almost as many yote the Democrats will make additional gains 1872 was an exceptional year. The Democratic party, dispirited by former defeats, was disintegrated by the nomination of Horace Greeley at Baltimore. It was but as chaff before the wind when the solid Republican organization, with ranks reformed and made resolute by a few desertions, marched to the polls. The consequence was that we swept districts which we had never carried before, and can never carry than the carpet-bagger," again. Eighteen majority in the next Congress is all we claim, and, to make that claim good, Pennsylvania must do her whole duty in No-

RHODE ISLAND. To the Conservative column we will soon add Virginia, Louisiana, Maryland, and, we hope New York. The revolution is progressing. Sixteen years of Radical misrule is as much as the country can stomach.

THE NEXT CONGRESS .- The present House of Representatives-Forty-third Congress-is composed of 272 representatives and 10 delegates from the Territories, According to Mc Pherson's Manual they are divided as follows: Republicans 194, Democrats 93, Liberals 6. The Republicans therefore have a majority of 101 over the Democrats, and 95 over both Democrats and Liberals. The complexion of the pext Congress will of course be materially changed. From present advices 108 members have been elected to the next House. Of these 52 are Republicans and 56 Democrats. The same States send to the present Congress 76 Republicans and 32 Democrats. If the Democrats gain in the same ratio in the States which are yet to elect, they will have 150 members in the next House, a majority of 13 over the Republicans and of 8 over both Liberals and Republicans, or if the Liberals vote with them, of 18 over the administration Republicans. This fact is a source of much anxiety on the part of the administration office-holders, and must be Blaine, Mr. Dawes, General Garfield, Goneral Butler, Judge Kelly, and other prominent chairmen of committees .- Baltimore Sun.

SHERMAN AND GRANT .- There seems to be had feeling between these two heroes. The complaint against Sherman seems to be that. in the concluding chapter of his memoirs of the war, which has been published, he speaks rather disparagingly of the "subordinates of the staff corps and departments, who too commonly construe themselves into the elite, as made of better clay than the common soldier." "They separate themselves more and more from their comrades of the line," &c. "This is all wrong; utterly at variance with our democratic form of government," &c.

This has given great offence to the aristocratic surroundings of the War Department at Washington, and in retaliation, as it were, the Cincinnati Gazette even goes so far as to make Sherman a military nobody, denying that he ever won a victory during the war, where there was much fighting. The National Republican, the administration organ at Washington, demands that Gen. Sherman shall return from the West. or resign.

Towns with less than 10,000 inhabitants he estimates as having debts amounting to $80,-000,000-making the total municipal debt of the country $570,000,000. Besides these municipal debts, the county debts of the country amount-to $180,000,000, and the State debts to $390,000,000 - making a total aggregate of $1,- an County on last Sabbath. The services were 160,000,000 as the public debt of States, counties. and towns of the whole country. This added to the National debt, makes the total of $3,280.-000,000. In addition to this, we have $1,900,-000 of railroad indebtedness, of which at least $395,000,000 is held abroad. It may be that a portion of the larger sum is included in the debts of towns and counties. Adding the railroad indebtedness to the public debt, we have the grand total, $5,180,000,000—and this independent of the individual indebtedness, which amounts probably to half as much more.

The New York Herald suspects that Speaker Bhine has made this display of National and State and municipal indebtedness, with a lurking design to show the absurdity of attempting specie payments, and that he has an eye to become the candidate for the Presidency of the paper-money party. Whatever may be the ulterior designs of the Speaker, it is very certain his exhibits make manifest and incontrovertible the folly of talking about specie payments for long years to come. And lucky it will be for us, if that time should never come, and that we should at once and forever abandon all thoughts of ever seeking the return of hard money .- Richmond Whig.

Although the uminous and interesting report of his work for years ago made a different decision (Judge Read delivering the opinion and Chief Justice Pearson dissenting) it was believed by lawyers generally that the U.S. Courts would over-rule that opinion, and declare that a Homestead law adopted in 1868 could not constitutionally apply to debts previously contracted. We are sorry that any old debtor dereived himself or suffered himself to be deceived.

Our readers know that we have warned old debtors of what might be expected from the decision of U. S. Judges, and advised a compromise of old debts. We think that Judge Dick, of the Federal Court in this State, will be as lenient as possible towards old debtors and give them time to make such compromises as are possible under unfortunate circumstances.

Here is Judge Bond's decision:

THE PEABORY FUND Trustees' VIEWS ON MIXED SCHOOLS. - NEW YORK, October 19th, 1874.—The committee of the Peabody fund trustees, consisting of Wm. M. Evarts, John H. Clifford and Samuel Wetmore, appointed to consider the subject of mixed schools in the South, report that after the most careful comparison of opinions and the most solicitous conideration of all the elements of the discussion affecting the interests of education in the varions States for their white and colored population, they have unanimously come to the conclusion that the prospects and hopes of the pub-lic systems of education at the South will receive a serious if not fatal blow from any legislation which should make such systems of education maintainable only on a scheme of mixed schools. As to the organization required for such public education, the Board are of opinion that while justice and public duty, as well as the interests and feelings of the white and colored people of the South concur, demanding a system of public education which should give centery, Springfield, Ill., by Mr. Meade, the equal opportunities and equal advantages to sculptor, was unvailed before an immense conthe children of either color, that no such result of mixed schools. RIGHTS OF RAILROAD PASSENGERS TO SEATS. —On Sunday afternoon about forty passengers on the 1.45 p. m. Erie train from New York, were obliged to stand about half the way to Paterson, and several of them refused to give up their tickets to the conductor unless he furnished them with seats. After they had got seats they insisted that they should not be obliged to pay their fare for the time and distance during which they had no seats. The conductor refused to accede to this proposition, and ejected the resisting passengers near Passaic. Mr. Joseph C. Todd, President of the Todd & Rafferty Manufacturing Company, was one of this party, and he has brought suit against the Erie Railroad for $10,000. Mr. L. C. FIRE.-The roof of W. F. Shultz's Planing Mill caught fire on Tuesday last but was extinguished without much damage being done. Origin of fire unknown. These frequent warnings should cause the utmost care, particularly in cases where adjacent property is endangered

WE notice the trees have been neatly trimmed in the Public Square, and the walks sanded.

Our merchants in Salem are holding out unusual inducements to purchasers just now. Don't fail to give them all a trial before purchasing elsewhere.

THE ECLIPSE on Sunday morning last was invisible on account of the sky being overcast with clouds. About the time designated in the Almanac, as total, it became very dark, so that the night-watchman found it difficult to continue his rounds, until the eclipse was over. We were sorely disappointed as a similar eclipse has not occurred for some eighteen years.

In New York a fine view enabled several photographs to be taken, which are given in Sunday's New York Herald, with a detailed account of the different stages of the eclipse.

G. M. MATHES, of the Winston Sentinel, and N. S. Cook, Senator elect from Stokes and Forsyth, engaged in a tussle in Winston, on Saturday last. W. A. Walker, of the Union Republican, while endeavoring to part the belligerents, had his nose smashed.

Horse Thieves .- On Sunday evening last considerable excitement was occasioned in the neighborhood of Union Cross by frequent reports of firearms, something unusual on the Sabbath in that quiet rural district.

It appears that two suspicious persons were seen in a field gathering corn and carrying it to a dense pine thicket. Their mysterious movements caused alarm and soon a number of neighbors partially surrounded the thicket, stationing several negroes, armed with guns, at a gap or opening. One of the men then entered the brushwood and found a fine horse hitched to a limb, and in endeavoring to loose him was fired upon, a ball passing through his hat just above the band. He, however, continued his endeavors to free the animal, until he was overpowed by the thieves, who quickly mounted and charged the affrighted darkies who gave up their weapons and let them pass, and thus escaped. They were followed until dark, but all traces of them were lost in the neighborhood of Friendship, in Guilford county. There are several other versions of this affair, but the above is the most reasonable.

We have been requested to state that John H. Shultz is Agent for C. B. Denson, Florist, Kilvyn's Nursery, Pittsboro, N. C. Any $5 50 a $6 00. orders left with him will be promptly attended to. Office at W. F. Shultz's Cabinet Shop.

FATAL ACCIDENT .- On Sunday evening last, as Mr. Charles Spainhour, resident about four miles north of Bethania, took the bridle from his horse to let him into the stable, the animal turned and kicked him in the side, from the effects of which he died on Tuesday following, aged about 60 years.

LEWIS MABE, of Stokes county, about 80 years old, was found dead on the side of the road near the residence of one of his sons last week. He was on a visit to his son, and it is supposed that he fell dead, as there was no sign of his having struggled.

YEARLY MEETING .- The annual meeting of the Friends or Quakers will commence at New Garden, Guilford county, on next Sunday.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Vinegas Briters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Vinegas Briters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use VINEGAR BITTERS as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in every form.
